CHRISTMAS at ARLINGTON

We continue the tour begun in our November/December issue of Arlington Antebellum Home and Gardens.

LASTING TRADITION

Once the bustling residence of prominent Birmingham-area personalities, including Robert S. Munger, Arlington is the city's only surviving antebellum home. Christmas décor with a wedding focus highlights an ongoing Arlington tradition—a family rose-point lace veil, passed down through generations and worn by 22 different brides.

CHRISTMAS MEMORIES

Past and present come together to create a memorable visit any time of year, but Arlington is especially beautiful during the holiday season. The home and decorative arts museum is open six days a week and hosts an annual Christmas open house. To visit, call 205-780-5656.
